I had two general ideas for the website, a sharp, simple design that is black and white only to keep the website as clean as possible, if a little bland. The other basic design was primarily a white and blue layout with some red to keep a patriotic theme. This felt a little cliched and I had reservations about it however seeing the two I have decided to forward with the red, white and blue design even though what I envisioned I wasn't able to do with my knowledge of photoshop. The black and white design was bold but felt bland and stale.
